The margin flies home last.

A Singapore agency sells group tours in dollars, pays hotels and coaches in yen, won and euro, and learns what each trip made weeks after the group lands. The knot, and how Odoo 20 untied it.

the complicated part

Priced once in SGD, costed all year in yen.

drag the rate · change the pax

Exchange rate S$0.940 per ¥100

stronger SGD — stronger yen

Travelling 20 of 24 sold [−] [+]

Coach, guide and tour leader cost the same for 16 pax or 24. An odd number leaves one twin room with a single guest.

S$497 moves off the margin for every 1 cent the yen gains per ¥100

why it is hard

Suppliers are paid before the guests pay.

10% deposit | 20% | 30%

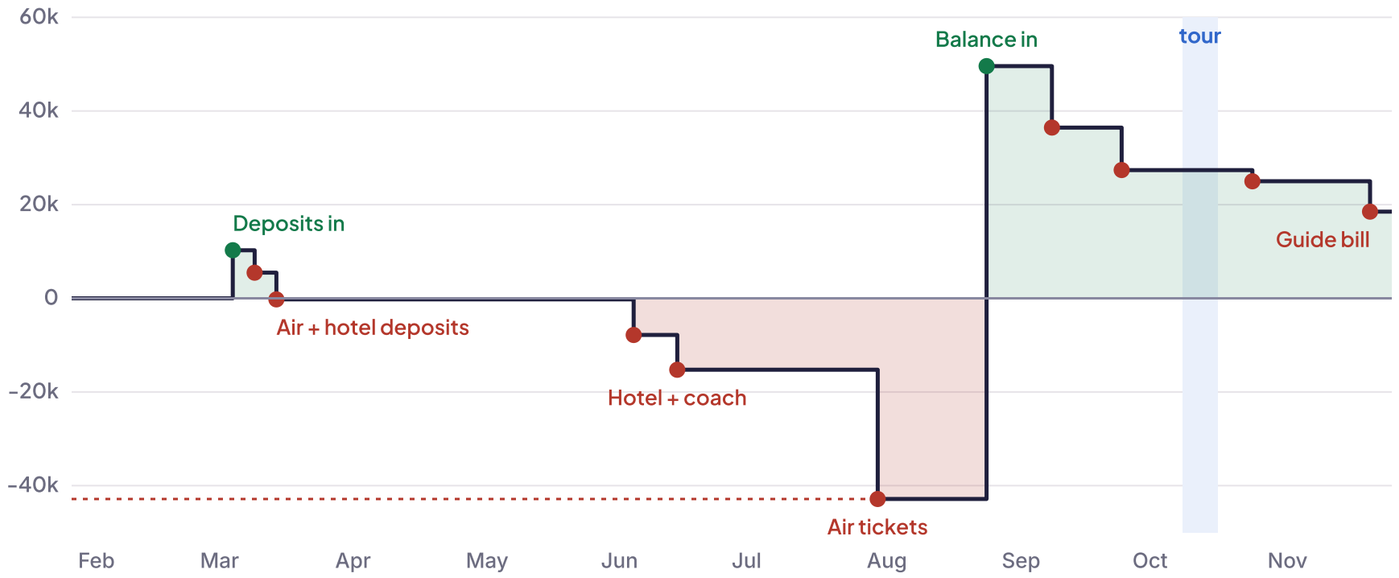

CASH POSITION · HKD-1027

Guest receipts minus supplier payments, 24 pax as booked

DEEPEST GAP

S$42,858

163 days below zero

Four currencies, one price

The guest pays a fixed SGD price. Deposits go out in yen in March, balances in September, each at that day's rate.

Costs land in the wrong tour

The coach company bills two departures on one invoice. Half of it lands in HKD-1027, half in "general".

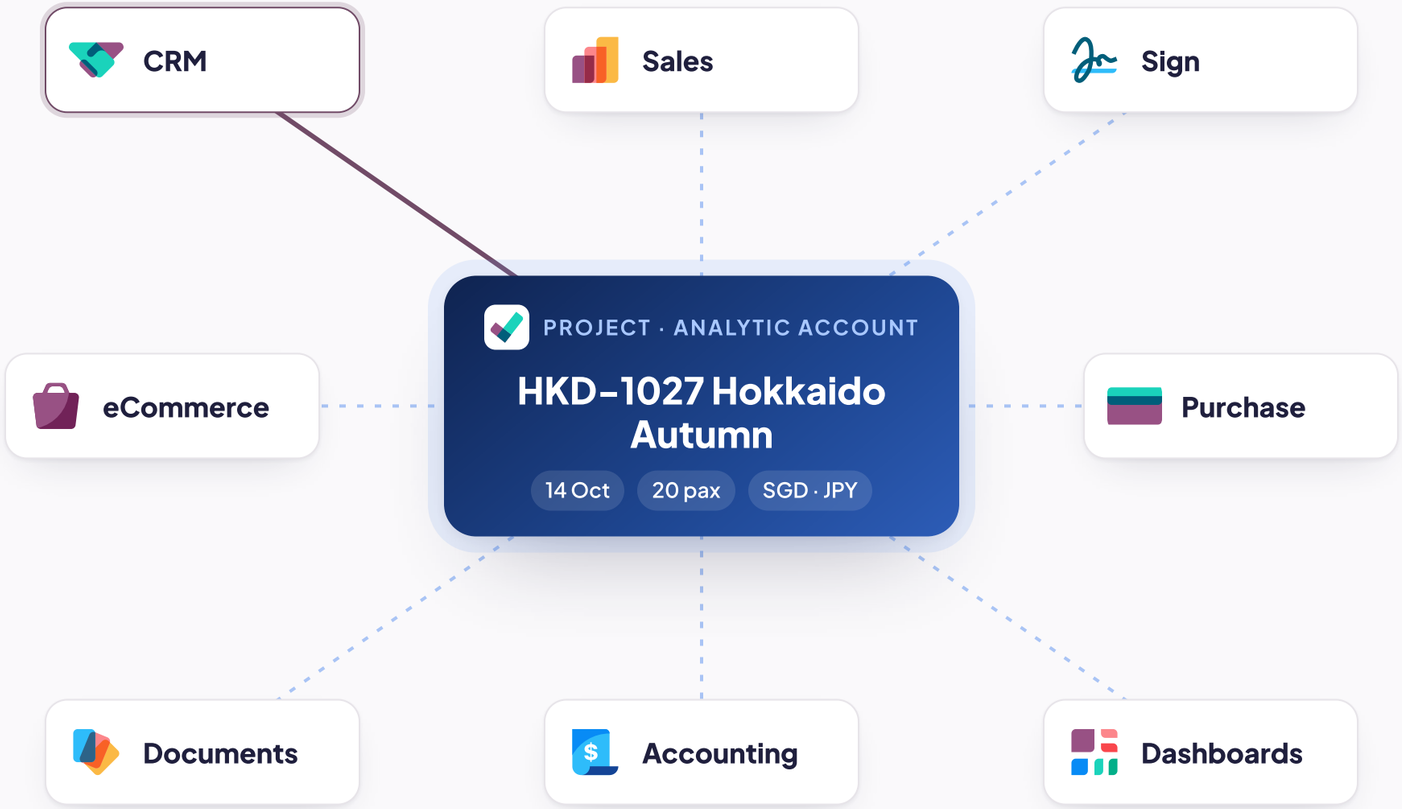

The last bill comes late

The guide invoices five weeks after the group lands. Until then the margin is a guess.
